

|    |      | from 11 May as the Communes. On 12 June, the Communes invited the other Estates to join them: some members of the First Estate did so the following day. On 17 June 1789, the Communes approved the motion made by Sieyès that declared themselves the National Assembly[2] by a vote of 490 to 90. The Third Estate now believed themselves to be a legitimate authority equal to that of the King. Elements of the First Estate, primarily parish priests who were closer in wealth to the Third Estate compared to the bishops who were closer in wealth to the Second Estate, joined the assembly from 13 June onwards and, on 19 June, the whole of the clergy voted to join the National Assembly. A legislative and political agenda unfolded. • 14 Jul 1789: Storming of the Bastille  |
|----|------|--|
|    |      | The medieval fortress, armory, and political prison in Paris known as the Bastille represented royal authority in the center of Paris. The prison contained just seven inmates at the time of its storming but was a symbol of abuses by the monarchy; its fall was the flashpoint of the French Revolution. <li>Aug 1789: Déclaration des droits de l'homme et du citoyen</li>  |
|    |      | The key drafts were prepared by Lafayette, working at times with his close friend Thomas Jefferson, who drew heavily upon The Virginia Declaration of Rights, drafted in May 1776 by George Mason (which was based in part on the English Bill of Rights 1689), as well as Jefferson's own drafts for the American Declaration of Independence. In August 1789, Honoré Mirabeau played a central role in conceptualizing and drafting the Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen  |
| 10 | 1790 | • 9 Jul 1790: Battle of SvensksundThe Swedish naval forces dealt the Russian fleet a devastating defeat that resulted in an end to the Russo-Swedish War of 1788–90. The Russians lost sixty-four ships and over athousand men. The Swedes lost four ships and had few casualties. (Sidney Smith)  |
| 11 | 1791 | 27 Aug 1791 : Declaration of Pillnitz     Frederick William II of Prussia and the Habsburg Holy Roman Emperor Leopold II who was Marie Antoinette's brother declared the joint support of the Holy Roman Empire and of Prussia for King Louis XVI of France against the French Revolution. The National Assembly of France interpreted the declaration to mean that Leopold was going to declare war. Radical Frenchmen who called for war, such as Jacques Pierre Brissot, used it as a pretext to gain influence and declare war on 20 April 1792, leading to the campaigns of 1792 in the French Revolutionary Wars   |
| 12 | 1791 | 1 Oct 1791—20 Sep 1792: Assemblé législative     The National Constituent Assembly dissolved itself on 30 September 1791. Upon Robespierre's motion it had decreed that none of its members would be eligible to the next legislature. Its     successor body, the Legislative Assembly, operating under the liberal French Constitution of 1791, lasted until 20 September 1792, when the National Convention was established after     the insurrection of 10 August just the month before. The Legislative Assembly entrenched the perceived left-right political spectrum that is still commonly used today. There were 746     members.   |
|    |      | <ul> <li>15 Dec 1791: US Bill of Rights the Bill of Rights amendments add to the Constitution specific guarantees of personal freedoms and rights, clear limitations on the government's power in judicial and other proceedings, and explicit declarations that all powers not specifically delegated to Congress by the Constitution are reserved for the states or the people. The concepts codified in these amendments are built upon those found in several earlier documents, including the Virginia Declaration of Rights and the English Bill of Rights 1689, along with earlier documents such as Magna Carta (1215)</li> </ul>  |
| 13 | 1792 | <ul> <li>1792—1797: War of the First Coalitionthe first attempt by the European monarchies to defeat the French First Republic.</li> <li>20 Sep 1792—26 Oct 1795: Convention nationale</li> </ul>   |
|    |      | It succeeded the Legislative Assembly and founded the First Republic after the insurrection of 10 August 1792. The Legislative Assembly decreed the provisional suspension of King Louis XVI and the convocation of a National Convention which was to draw up a constitution. At the same time it was decided that deputies to that convention should be elected by all Frenchmen twenty-five years old or more, domiciled for a year and living by the product of their labor. The National Convention was therefore the first French assembly elected by universal male suffrage, without distinctions of class.• 3 Dec 1792—14 Jan 1793: Trial of Louis XVI  |
|    | 1700 | Louis XVI heard the 33 charges sitting in the armchair in which he had accepted the Constitution. After the secretary had read him the accusation act, Bertrand Barère de Vieuzac repeated each charge and questioned Louis XVI.   |
| 14 | 1793 | <ul> <li>21 Jan 1793: Execution of Louis XVI (guillotined) Louis XVI was beheaded by guillotine on the Place de la Révolution. As Louis XVI mounted the scaffold, he appeared dignified and resigned. He delivered a short speech in which he pardoned "those who are the cause of my death". He then declared himself innocent of the crimes of which he was accused, praying that his blood would not fall back on France</li> <li>Apr 1793—22 Aug 1795: Comité de salut public the de facto executive government in France during the Reign of Terror (1793–94) 9-12 members, Robespierre included (guillotined 1794)</li> </ul>  |
|    |      | • 8 Sep 1793—19 Dec 1793: Siege of Toulona military siege of Republican forces over a Royalist rebellion in the southern French city of Toulon. France: about 32,000 men, 14 French ships of the line sunk in harbor, 15 captured, 27saved Coalition: about 22,000 men, 37 British ships, 32 Spanish ships, 5 Neapolitan ships of the line   |
|    |      | <ul> <li>16 Oct 1793: Marie Antoinette guillotined</li> <li>Early on 16 October, Marie Antoinette was declared guilty of the three main charges against her: depletion of the national treasury, conspiracy against the internal and external security ofthe State, intelligence with the enemy, this one alone being enough to condernn her to death</li> </ul>  |
| 15 | 1793 | • 5 Sep 1793 —28 Jul 1794: Reign of Terrormass executions of "enemies of the revolution". The death toll ranged in the tens of thousands, with 16,594 executed by guillotine (2639 in Paris), and another 25,000 in summaryexecutions across France  |
| 16 | 1794 | • 2 May 1794 —1 Jun 1794: Atlantic campaign of May 1794a series of operations conducted by the British Royal Navy's Channel Fleet against the French Navy's Atlantic Fleet, with the aim of preventing the passage of a strategically importantFrench grain convoy travelling from the United States to France.  |
| 17 | 1794 |  |
|    |      | <ul> <li>1 Jun 1794: Glorious First of Junehe first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory</li> </ul>  |
|    |      | he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -  |
| 18 | 1795 | he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory10 Aug 1794—19 Oct 1796: Anglo-Corsican KingdomFollowing the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to interveneto free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom• 15 Oct 1795: 13 VendémiaireOn 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulonand gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three yearsearlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. Hecleared the streets with "a whiff of grapeshot"• 2 Nov 1795—10 Nov 1799: Directoire executif  |
|    |      | <ul> <li>he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory - French strategic victory</li> <li>10 Aug 1794—19 Oct 1796: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>15 Oct 1795: 13 Vendémiaire</li> <li>On 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulon and gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the streets with "a whiff of grapeshot"</li> <li>2 Nov 1795-D10 Nov 1799: Directoire exécutif</li> <li>a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul François Jean Nicolas, vicomte de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Étienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot</li> </ul>  |
| 18 | 1795 | <ul> <li>he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory - French strategic victory</li> <li>10 Aug 1794—19 Ot 1796: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>15 Oct 1795: 13 Vendémiaire</li> <li>On 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulon and gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the streets with "a whiff of grapeshot"</li> <li>2 Nov 1795—10 Nov 1795. Directoire exécutif</li> <li>a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul François Jean Nicolas, viccomte de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Étienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot</li> <li>Mar 1796—Jan 1797: Italian campaign Napoleon Bonaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian states</li> <li>Aug 1796—Jul 1808: Anglo-Spanish War</li> </ul>  |
|    |      | he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory 10 Aug 1794—19 Ot 1796: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom On 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulon and gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the streets with "a whilf of grapeshot" 2 Nov 1795—10 Nov 1799: Directoire executif a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul François Jean Nicolas, vicomat de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Étienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot Mar 1796—Jan 1797: Italian campaign Napoleon Bonaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian states   |
|    |      | he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory 10 Aug 1794—19 Oc 1796: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom 15 Oct 1795: 13 Vendémiaire On 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulon and gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the streets with "a whilf of grapeshot" 2 Nov 1795—10 Nov 1799: Directoire exécutíf a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul François Jean Nicolas, vicomte de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Étienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot 4 Mar 1796—Jul 108: Anglo-Spanis Mar a conflict fought between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signed between the UK and Kingdom of Spain, which was now under French invasion. 4 T Aug 1796—Jul 108: Anglo-Spanis Nar a conflict fought between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. The   |
|    |      | he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory 10 Aug 1794—19 Oct 1796: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom On 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulon and gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the streets with "a whift of grapeshot" 2 Nov 1795—10 Nov 1799: Directoire executif a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul François Jean Nicolas, vicomte de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Étienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot Mar 1796—Jun 1797: Italian campaign Napoleon Bonaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian states Aug 1796—UU 1808: Anglo-Spanish War a conflict fought between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signed between the UK and Kingdom of Spain, which was now under French invasion. 17 Aug 1796—Capital dison of Saldanha Bay the surrender to the British Royal Navy of a Du  |
| 19 | 1796 | <ul> <li>he first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory</li> <li>10 Aug 1794—19 Oct 1796: Anglo-Corsican KingdomFollowing the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from rexile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to interveneto free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>15 Oct 1795: 13 VendémiaireOn 3 October, ryalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulonand gave him command of the improvised forces in defence of the Convention in the Tuileries Palace. Napoleon had seen the massacre of the King's Swiss Guard there three yearsearlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. Hecleared the streets with "a whiff of grapeshot"</li> <li>2 Nor 1795—10 Nor 1799: Directoire exécutifa five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul FrançoisJean Nicolas, vicomte de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Revbell Etienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot</li> <li>Mar 1796—Jan 1797: Italian campaignNapoleon Bonaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian statesAug 1796—Jul 1808: Anglo-Spanish Wara conflict fought between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signedbetween the UK and Kingdom of Spain, which was now under French Invasion.</li> <li>17 Aug 1796: Capitulation of S</li></ul> |
| 19 | 1796 | <ul> <li>In first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory</li> <li>10 Aug 1744—19 Oct 1786: Anglo-Corsican KingdomFollowing the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to interveneto free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the Island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>15 Oct 1795: 13 VendémiaireOn 3 October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulonand gave him command of the improvised forces in defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. Hecleared the streets with *a whilf of grapeshot"</li> <li>2 Not 1795: "Divoctive executif</li> <li>a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul FrançoisJean Nicolas, vicomite de Barras, Louis Marie de La Réveilière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Étienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot</li> <li>Mar 1796- Du Not 1796. Spanish Wara conflict fought between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signedbetween the UK and Kingdom of Spain, which was now under French Invasion.</li> <li>17 Aug 1796: Capitulation of Saldanha Baythe surrender to the British Royal Navy of a Duthe expeditionary force sent to recapture the Dutch Cape Colony in 1796 during the French Revolutionary Wars</li> <li>14 Feb 1797: Battle of Cape St Vincentone of the pointing British cortrol&lt;</li></ul>                                      |
| 19 | 1796 | <ul> <li>In first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory -French strategic victory</li> <li>10 Aug 1794—19 Oct 1796: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to Interveneto free Corsica from French Revolution in 789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to Interveneto free Corsica from French Revolution in 789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to Interveneto free Corsica from French Revolution in 789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to Interveneto free Corsica from French Revolution against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulonand gave him command of the improvised forces in defence. He ordered a young cavairy officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. Hecleared the stretes with 'a whiff of grapeshot''</li> <li>2 Nov 1735—10 Nov 1739: Directoire executifa five-member committee of France France france france from November 1735, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte Paul FrançoisJean Nicolas, vicomte de Barras, Louis Marie de La Révellière-Lépeaux Jean-François Rewbell Etienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot</li> <li>4 Mar 1736—Jai 1797: Italian campaign</li> <li>Napoleon Bonaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian states</li> <li>Aug 1796—Jui 1808: Anglo-Spanish War</li> <li>a conflict fought betwe</li></ul>   |
| 19 | 1796 | <ul> <li>In first and largest field action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory - French strategic victory</li> <li>I Aug 1784—19.0 c1 7786: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>Foldwing the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>I 5 Oct 1785: 13 Vendémiaire</li> <li>On 3 October, royalists in Paris dedared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the Thermidorian Reaction, knew of Bonaparte's military exploits at Toulon and gave him command of the improvised forces in defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used there three years earlier and realised that attiffyer yould be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the streets with "a whilf of grapeshot"</li> <li>I Nov 1795-10 Nov 1799: Directoire excluif</li> <li>a five-member committee which governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte's campain</li> <li>Napoleon Bonaparte's campain in taly against Austria and several Italian states</li> <li>Aug 1796—Jul 1806: Anglo-Spaniah War</li> <li>a conflict fough between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signed between the UK and Kingdom of Spain, which was now under French Invasion.</li> <li>I 7 Aug 1796. Capitulation of Saldanha Bay</li> <li>Dee 1796-Capitulation of Saldanha Bay</li> <li>Dee 1796-Capitulation and eFrench Revolutiona</li></ul>   |
| 20 | 1796 | <ul> <li>In first and largest field action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory - Firends strategies victory</li> <li>Id Aug 1794—19 Oct 1796: Angle-Consican Kingdom</li> <li>Foldowing the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Consica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Consica from Trench rule. Angle-Consican forces drive the French from the Island and established an Angle-Consican Kingdom</li> <li>IS Oct 1795. 13 Vendémiare</li> <li>On 3 October, royalista in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the meassacre of the King's Swiss Calard there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the strates with a while governed France from November 1795, when it replaced the Committee of Public Safety, until it was overthrown by Napoleon Bonaparte's analtary exploits at Taraçois Jaen Nicolas, vicomite de Barras, Louis Marté and several Italian states</li> <li>Napoleon Bonaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian states</li> <li>Yaug 1796-Litagh between 1796 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, asp art of the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signed between the Uk and Kingdom of Spain, Whith was now under French invasion.</li> <li>Yaug 1796-Capitis Land Calard Navy at Outch expeditionary force sent to recepture the Dutch Cape Colony in 1796 during the French Revolutionary Wars</li> <li>Dec 1796-Dec 1796'. Expedition diffande</li> <li>Encouraged by Irepresentatives of the Society of United Irishmen, an Irish republican organisation, the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. Th</li></ul>   |
| 20 | 1796 | <ul> <li>In first and largest fleet action of the naval conflict between the Kingdom of Great Britain and the First French Republic during the French Revolutionary Wars. British tactical victory - French strategic victory</li> <li>I Aug 1794—19 Oct 1786: Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>Following the outbreak of the French Revolution in 1789, Pasquale Paoli was able to return to Corsica from exile in Britain. In 1794 he invited British forces under Lord Hood to intervene to free Corsica from French rule. Anglo-Corsican forces drove the French from the Island and established an Anglo-Corsican Kingdom</li> <li>I S Oct 1795. 13 Vendémiate</li> <li>O S October, royalists in Paris declared a rebellion against the National Convention. Paul Barras, a leader of the me massacro of the King's Swiss Caurd there three years earlier and realised that artillery would be the key to its defence. He ordered a young cavalry officer named Joachim Murat to seize large cannons and used them to repel the attackers. He cleared the stretes with 'a white fig drapeshot'.</li> <li>Nov 1795–10 Nov 1795: Directoire exècuit'a five-member committee white you liss Marie de La Révellière-Lépeau Jean-François Rewbell Etienne-François Le Tourneur Lazare Nicolas Marguerite Carnot</li> <li>Nargloen Benaparte's campaign in Italy against Austria and several Italian states</li> <li>Nag 1796—101 Nov 1795: Directoire exècuit'a a somitic fought between 1768 and 1802, and again from 1804 to 1808, as part of the French Revolutionary Wars and the Napoleonic Wars. The war ended when an alliance was signed between to the British Revol Navy Navy a D Under French invasion.</li> <li>Yaug 1796—1081. Anglo-Sanaish War</li> <li>Yaug 1796—1282. Expédition d'Italde</li> <li>Encouraged by representatives of the Sociely of United Irishmen, an Irish republican organisation, the French Revolutionary Wars.</li> <li>Dec 1795—Dec 1796: Expédition d'Italde</li> <li>Encouraged by representatives of the Sociely of United Iris</li></ul>   |

|    |      | expeditionary force under General Napoleon Bonaparte. The British fleet was led in the battle by Rear-Admiral Sir Horatio Nelson; they decisively defeated the French under Vice-Admiral François-Paul Brueys d'Aigalliers.  |
|----|------|--|
| 22 | 1799 | • 27 Aug 1799 —19 Nov 1799: Anglo-Russian invasion of Hollandan expeditionary force of British and Russian troops invaded the North Holland peninsula in the Batavian Republic. The campaign had two strategic objectives: to neutralize the Batavianfleet and to promote an uprising by followers of the former stadtholder William V against the Batavian government.  |
| 23 | 1799 | <ul> <li>9 Nov 1799: Coup of 18 Brumaire This bloodless coup d'état overthrew the Directory, replacing it with the French Consulate. This occurred on 9 November 1799, which was 18 Brumaire, Year VIII under the French Republican Calendar.</li> <li>10 Nov 1799—18 May 1804: Consulat three Consuls: Jean Jacques Régis de Cambacérès, Napoleon Bonaparte and Charles-François Lebrun During this period, Napoleon Bonaparte, as First Consul, established himself as the head of a more liberal, authoritarian, autocratic, and centralized republican government in France while not declaring himself head of state. Due to the long-lasting institutions established during these years, Robert B. Holtman has called the Consulate "one of the most important periods of all French history."[1] Napoleon brought authoritarian personal rule which has been viewed as military dictatorship</li> </ul>  |
| 24 | 1800 | <ul> <li>1800—1807: Septinsular Republican island republic that existed from 1800 to 1807 under nominal Russian and Ottoman sovereignty in the Ionian Islands. It succeeded the previous French departments of Greece. It wasthe first time Greeks had been granted even limited self-government since the fall of the last remnants[citation needed] of the Byzantine Empire to the Ottomans in the mid-15th century. In1807, the republic was ceded to Napoleon's First French Empire, but the islands were not annexed by France, keeping their institutions of government (known in French as RépubliqueSeptinsulaire or République des Sept-Îles). The British gradually took control of the islands, and following the Treaty of Paris, the islands were formally organised into the United States ofthe Ionian Islands under British protection.</li> </ul>  |
| 25 | 1801 | <ul> <li>9 Feb 1801: Treaty of Lunéville The signatory parties were the French Republic and Holy Roman Emperor Francis II, who was negotiating on his own behalf as ruler of the hereditary domains of the Habsburg Monarchy and also on behalf of the other rulers who controlled territories within the Holy Roman Empire. Joseph Bonaparte signed for France, whereas Count Ludwig von Cobenzl, the Austrian foreign minister, signed for the Emperor. The Austrian army had been defeated by Napoleon Bonaparte at the Battle of Marengo on 14 June 1800 and then by Jean Victor Moreau at the Battle of Hohenlinden on 3 December. Forced to sue for peace, the Austrians signed another in a series of humiliating treaties. This treaty (along with the Treaty of Amiens of 1802) marked the end of the Second Coalition against Napoleon. After this treaty, Great Britain was the sole nation still at war with France, but only for another year.</li> <li>2 Apr 1801: Battle of Copenhagen         a British naval fleet under the command of Admiral Sir Hyde Parker defeated a Danish fleet anchored just off Copenhagen. Vice Admiral Horatio Nelson led the main attack.</li> </ul>   |
| 26 | 1801 | • 8 Mar 1801 : Battle of AbukirThe landing of the British expeditionary force under Sir Ralph Abercromby was intended to defeat or drive out an estimated 21,000 remaining troops of Napoleon's ill-fated invasion ofEgypt.  |
| 27 | 1802 | <ul> <li>25 Mar 1802—18 May 1803: Peace of Amiens Under the treaty, Britain recognised the French Republic; the British parliament had dropped England's historical claim to the now-defunct French Kingdom only two years previously. Together with the Treaty of Lunéville (1801), the Treaty of Amiens marked the end of the Second Coalition, which had waged war against Revolutionary France since 1798. Britain ended the uneasy truce created by the Treaty of Amiens when it declared war on France in May 1803. The British were increasingly angered by Napoleon's re-ordering of the international system in Western Europe, especially in Switzerland, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands.</li> </ul>   |
| 28 | 1803 | <ul> <li>1803 —1806: War of the Third Coalitionthe Third Coalition, made up of the Holy Roman Empire, Russia, and others</li> </ul>   |
| 29 | 1804 | • 18 May 1804—11 Apr 1814: Empire Françaisthe empire of Napoleon Bonaparte of France and the dominant power in much of continental Europe at the beginning of the 19th century. Its name was a misnomer, as France already hadcolonies overseas and was short lived compared to the Colonial Empire. On 18 May 1804, Napoleon was granted the title Emperor of the French (L'Empereur des Français by the FrenchSénat and was crowned on 2 December 1804   |
| 30 | 1805 | <ul> <li>21 Oct 1805: Battle of Trafalgar</li> <li>27 British ships of the line led by Admiral Lord Nelson aboard HMS Victory defeated 33 French and Spanish ships of the line under the French Admiral Villeneuve in the Atlantic off thesouthwest coast of Spain, just west of Cape Trafalgar, in Caños de Meca. The Franco-Spanish fleet lost twenty-two ships, without a single British vessel being lost. It was the mostdecisive naval battle of the war, conclusively ending French plans to invade England</li> </ul>  |
| 31 | 1806 | <ul> <li>1806—1807: War of the Fourth CoalitionCoalition partners included Prussia, Russia, Saxony, Sweden, and Great Britain. Several members of the coalition had previously been fighting France as part of the Third Coalition, andthere was no intervening period of general peace. On 9 October 1806, Prussia joined a renewed coalition, fearing the rise in French power after the defeat of Austria and establishment ofthe French-sponsored Confederation of the Rhine. Prussia and Russia mobilized for a fresh campaign, and Prussian troops massed in Saxony.</li> </ul>   |
| 32 | 1807 | <ul> <li>1807—1814: Peninsular War         <ul> <li>a military conflict between Napoleon's empire and the allied powers of Spain, Britain and Portugal for control of the Iberian Peninsula during the Napoleonic Wars</li> <li>1807—1814: Gunboat War             <ul></ul></li></ul></li></ul>   |
| 33 | 1809 | 10 Apr 1809 —14 Oct 1809: War of the Fifth Coalitionthe Austrian Empire and the United Kingdom against Napoleon's French Empire and Bavaria  |
| 34 | 1813 | • Mar 1813 — May 1814: War of the Sixth Coalitiona coalition of Austria, Prussia, Russia, the United Kingdom, Portugal, Sweden, Spain and a number of German states finally defeated France and drove Napoleon into exile on Elba. Afterthe disastrous French invasion of Russia of 1812, the continental powers joined Russia, the United Kingdom, Portugal and the rebels in Spain who were already at war with France.  |
| 35 | 1815 | <ul> <li>1815—1864: US of the Ionian Islands</li> <li>Before the French Revolutionary Wars, the Ionian Islands had been part of the Republic of Venice. When the 1797 Treaty of Campo Formio dissolved the Republic of Venice, it was annexed into the French Republic, created into the French departments of Greece. Between 1798 and 1799, the French were driven out by a joint Russo-Ottoman force. The occupying forces founded the Septinsular Republic, which enjoyed relative independence under nominal Ottoman suzerainty and Russian control from 1800 until 1807. The Ionian Islands were then occupied by the French after the treaty of Tilsit. In 1809, the United Kingdom defeated the French fleet off Zakynthos island on 2 October, and captured Kefalonia, Kythira, and Zakynthos. The British took Lefkada in 1810. The island of Corfu remained occupied by the French nuttil 1814. The Congress of Vienna agreed to place the Ionian Islands under the exclusive "amical protection" of the United Kingdom. Despite British military administration, the Austrian Empire was guaranteed commercial status equal to the UK. The arrangement was formalised with the ratification of the "Maitland constitution" on 26 August 1817, which created a federation of the seven islands, with Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Maitland its first "Lord High Commissioner of the Ionian Islands".</li> <li>20 Mar 1815-9 Jul 1815: Hundred Days the period between Napoleon's return from exile on the island of Elba to Paris on 20 March 1815 and the second restoration of King Louis XVIII on 8 July 1815 (a period of 111 days)</li> </ul> |
|    |      | <ul> <li>15 Jun 1815—8 Jul 1815: Waterloo Campaignfought between the French Army of the North and two Seventh Coalition armies, an Anglo-allied army and a Prussian army.</li> <li>18 Jun 1815: Battle of Waterloo</li> </ul>   |
|    |      | A French army under the command of Napoleon Bonaparte was defeated by two of the armies of the Seventh Coalition: an Anglo-led Allied army under the command of the Duke of Wellington, and a Prussian army under the command of Gebhard Leberecht von Blücher, Prince of Wahlstatt.• 20 Nov 1815: Treaty of Paris   |
|    |      | Four days after France's defeat in the Battle of Waterloo, Napoleon was persuaded to abdicate again, on 22 June. King Louis XVIII, who had fled the country when Napoleon arrived in Paris, took the throne for a second time on 8 July. The 1815 treaty had stronger punitive terms than the treaty of the previous year. France was ordered to pay 700 million francs in indemnities, and the country's borders were reduced to their 1790 level. France was to pay additional money to cover the cost of providing additional defensive fortifications to be built by neighbouring Coalition countries. Under the terms of the treaty parts of France were to be occupied by up to 150,000 soldiers for five years, with France footing the bill—however the Coalition occupation, under the command of the Duke of Wellington was only deemed necessary for three years and the foreign troops pulled out in 1818  |
| 36 | 1822 | 7 Sep 1822: Independence of Brazil     regent Prince Dom Pedro declared Brazil's independence from Portugal  |
| 37 | 1828 | 1828—1834: Portuguese Civil War the War of the Two Brothers, or Miguelite War, was a war between progressive constitutionalists and authoritarian absolutists in Portugal over royal succession  |
| 38 | 1848 | 15 Mar 1848 —4 Oct 1849: Hungarian War of IndependenceIn 1848 and 1849, the Hungarian people or Magyars, who wanted independence, formed a majority only in about a third of the total country known as "Hungary and Transylvania," sinceTransylvania had many Romanian people in it and the Magyars were surrounded by other nationalities.   |
| 39 | 1853 | • Oct 1853 —Mar 1856: Crimean Wara military conflict in which the Russian Empire lost to an alliance of France, Britain, the Ottoman Empire, and Sardinia. The immediate cause involved the rights of Christian minorities inthe Holy Land, which was a part of the Ottoman Empire.  |

Geneagraphie - Families all over the world - Maintained by Hans A.M. Weebers http://geneagraphie.com/members/